

EXONERATE BOXER; OPPONENT DIED IN CHURCH CLUB RING

Stebbins Vows He'll Never Put On the Gloves Again After Tragedy in Brooklyn.

Heart failure from exhaustion while boxing caused the death of George Brogan, twenty-six years old, of No. 105 Minford Place, the Bronx, in the Loughlin Lyceum, No. 24 North Henry Street, Brooklyn, at 10:30 o'clock last night.

The Loughlin Lyceum is a club-house and gymnasium used by young men of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Cecilia. Brogan and his chum, Arthur Stebbins, twenty-four, of No. 20 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street, Manhattan, went there together last evening on the invitation of members.

After engaging in various gymnastic exercises Brogan and Stebbins, laughing, agreed to "put on the gloves" before they started home. They had been boxing only a few minutes when Brogan collapsed.

The others tried to rouse him and then called the Rev. Father Irwin, an assistant priest, from the church rectory. Father Irwin administered the last rites to the unconscious Brogan, while others called an ambulance from the Williamsburg Hospital. Before the ambulance arrived Brogan was dead.

A report was made to the police and Coroner, but as Stebbins was pronounced blameless he was not held. "I'll never put on boxing gloves again as long as I live," said Stebbins. "George was the best friend I had in the world."

Friends accompanied Stebbins home, as he was almost prostrated by grief.

John Brogan, an elder brother, said to-day that no one in the family had ever known of any weakness of the heart in George. Recently he had complained that he was taking on weight and said he was going to join a gymnasium to get some systematic hard exercise. He was a steel engraver and according to his brother had never tasted a drink or smoked.

They argued a petition in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, but Judge C. C.
